The Professor's Salary

With the increase of Faculty salaries announced in the last issue of the NEWS, there was no mention made of the coincident raise in rent effected by the Board of Managers. The augmentation of income of the Haverford professors, then, is not so great as represented in the news released in Philadelphia papers. To an undergraduate observer of the situation it seems only fitting and proper that a professor should be given his house for occupation as long as he is a member of the Faculty. The house should be in much the same position as the rectory of a church, held during the incumbency of its occupant.

The question of professors' salaries has long been bandied about, but it is such a vital problem that until matters are improved it cannot be too often discussed. President Angell, of Yale, in his annual report, sees not only misfortune for wives and families of instructors, but also a menace to the future if steps are not taken to remedy the condition of underpaid faculties. Fewer young instructors will enter the teaching profession unless themselves possessing a substantial income, because of the difficulty of earning a living wage.

Alumni and the general public, believes the President of Yale, have been assessed and have given to the saturation point. He asks the question: Whence are the increased funds to come? From the students themselves, he answers.

If the tuition is raised to cover the expenses of instruction, an education will not be so accessible to the many. Here, then, is an immediate barrier to the proposed remedy. As pointed out by the Harvard Crimson, the Kent School system of a sliding tuition fee would not be feasible in a college in that many students are paying twice as much as others. This might be regarded as a step toward socialism—a tax on wealth.

If, however, parents realized the amount of money spent on their children, perhaps, if within their ability, they would see their way clear to paying over and above the requisite fee. In addition, bequests might be made for no specific department, but for the general increase in salaries of professors and instructors. If these methods are not practicable, then some solution must be reached in the near future if the youth of tomorrow is to be educated by men who are on the same high plane of college faculties of today, and these men must receive compensation for their efforts greater than that of the traditional bricklayer and plumber.

Patriotism vs. Intelligence

In view of the fact that four of the six speakers obtained by the Liberal Club during the present academic year are listed as "dangerous" to such patriotic organizations as the American Legion and the R. O. T. C., it seems appropriate at this time that Haverford undergraduates should take cognizance of the existing widespread movement to curb liberal thought and expression in this country.

Perhaps the most significant and at the same time the most ridiculous part of the activities of these ardent supporters of 100 per cent Americanism is this attempt to deny the merits of such institutions as the University of higher education from the corrupting influence of men of unscrupulous doctrine. When we reflect that such noted educators and thinkers as Dr. Rufus M. Jones, Haverford professor of philosophy, are ranked among those who are undesirable as lecturers in American colleges, the guardian angel role assumed by these military groups in the field of education borders on the preposterous.

Only last week an attempt was made to suppress the student Liberal Club at the West Chester Normal School and a sweeping investigation of its policies was instituted as the result of the intervention of the American Legion. Resolutions condemning the Club were presented at an informal meeting with it were first drafted by the local post and then by the Chester County Committee, and were sent to the Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction at Harrisburg because members of the West Chester branch of the Legion objected to criticism of the United States policy in Nicaragua, made by Liberal Club members in a discussion meeting.

Intelligent appraisal of the present situation cannot fail to disclose the serious threat which the attempt of patriotic, semi-official military organizations to control the expression of liberal views on the part of students and educators offers to education as well as individual rights.

Such sinister and systematic intervention on the part of the American Legion and organizations of a like character represents a definite attempt to establish the gospel of narrow-mindedness. It offers a direct affront to the intelligence of the undergraduate of today, which cannot hope to maintain itself unchallenged in the face of aroused and enlightened student opinion.

BRINTON FUND CHANGED

Scholarship Left by 1915 Graduate to Be Used for Teaching Funds from the Walter Carroll Brinton Memorial Fund will be used in the future together with those of the William Penn Foundation for undergraduate instruction in foreign relations, it was decided at the last meeting of the Board of Managers. The change was made at the request of the relatives of the late Mr. Brinton, who had been doing construction work in France in 1918.

Income from the fund amounts to $250 yearly. Mr. Brinton was a member of the class of 1915.

CLASS REUNION HELD

Fifty Members of Class of '26 Enjoy "Wild West Night" in Philadelphia Approximately fifty members of the class of '26 were present at an informal reunion of the class held at the Haverford Club in Philadelphia on April 1. The reunion was featured by a dinner and a novel entertainment in the form of a "Wild West Night." At the dinner W. Mead, permanent secretary of the class, read a telegram from J. H. Hooper, Alumni secretary, congratulating the class on its contribution of $212 to the Brinton Fund. This is the largest contribution made so far.

COMMENT

This column contains letters, or excerpts of letters, addressed to the editor of The News and comment on matters of interest to Haverford undergraduates. All comments are chosen from a variety of sources.

Speaking of Food
Editor, Haverford News.
Dear Sir,
President Comfort's recent reference, in Collection to the havoc that consistently poor food is capable of wreaking in the smooth and satisfactory course of a man's life seems to indicate that at least one of the members of the College Administration does not fully realize the daily disgrace of the Founders dining hall. Surveys of the situation and the constant presence of the dining room for doubt as to the calibre of the ordinary Haverford meal. The thing has gone so far that a group of undergraduates is now seriously considering eating three times a day at a nearby five-room; certainly the crowding of the Haverford Pharmacy, especially at lunch hour, should be sufficiently indicative of the fact that palatable food must be sought off the campus.

If it is simply a question of the Comfort's reminder, that the subject is broached again. Poor cooking is probably quite capable of lessening our regard for his college as it is of diminishing one's love for his wife.

Sincerely,
J. R. '29

DR. ADLER GIVES FINAL CHILD STUDY LECTURE

"Inferior Complexes in Children"
Subject of Vienna Psychologist
Last Wednesday, in the fourth and final lecture of the Child Study Series, which has been given in Roberts Hall during the past two months under the auspices of the Main Line Parents and Teachers Committee, Dr. Alfred Adler, noted psychologist of Vienna discussed "Inferior Complexes in Children."

Impressing as the main idea of his talk the fact that one must have a mental picture of what he is going to do before doing it. Dr. Adler went on to show how this applied to children. He stated that various children between the ages of two and five will come up against some problem with which their previous education has not fitted them to cope, and consequently they will react inferiorly in a negative way.

Dr. Adler divided the inferiority complexes in children into three groups, that of spoiled children, that of those who are physically unfit, and of those who are precisely the opposite of spoiled, and who have never had the experience of love at all, such as parentally abused children and orphans.

As a method of cure he advised getting these children to do something out of themselves or quickly going back with the child over his life and showing him where he first came upon an obstacle which he could not overcome, and making him visualize a programme of action on the useful side so that he will turn the thought into action.

Critically Speaking

A friend of Haverford College, who prefers to remain anonymous, has arranged to write a review of the Haverfordian each month for the News. These reviews will be written frankly and form an invaluable standpoint based entirely on the literary merits of demerits of the contents.

This month the Haverfordian is more diverse than usual, since "The God of the Glories" actually deals with the prize-ring and not with London Society in the times of Good Queen Bess, nor even with a ghost passionate about the latest in men's suede. The result is that one begins to read with pleasure. When it appears that the scene opens in an old theatre, and that a person named "Strak" is to be the antagonist (apparently one of low degree) things he says, "Am't" and "Hell" instead of "and it please you not" and "Oh! bud" even interest is aroused. Here is an author who touches his own experience, or if he doesn't, has at least read "The Cosmopolitan" with profit. This sort of unspoken pleasure; the people in it are quietly conventional and thus, at least temporarily convenient. The writing is competent, and shows this largely by not being breathless.

Musser's tale, to do it justice, requires a hair-splitting. The story must be separated from its treatment, simply because the story is creditable, but the treatment is not. The story, whether invented or read, is simply and honest. It needed no ornament, it asked for plain telling. The author, however, saw fit to compose it in a style that was altogether too reminiscent of that employed by J. J. Carr, and so far as this particular under, Musser is not to be faulted under a more unfortunate influence.

"The Inn of Seven Swords," like all Carr's romantic stories, lacks the merits of a good story and all of the defects of a bad one. This may be more clearly explained by saying that an obnoxious telling has ruined a good story. The elements of excitement, sentiment, what the modern world calls "romance," and realism are excellently mixed and Carr shows great credit of constructing it, but this is noticeably his strong point. But this plot had to be told, and less trouble enters, because the writer has chosen in every detail the wrong method of presenting his material. Instead of rapid, honest narration, to which historical veridicality is given by the use of significant details, he prefers a semi-swearbacking, semi-moonstruck, vague and inflated style. The characters become obscured, and all talkative and give the reader a headache. The poet rants in the very worst G. K. Chesterton vein, and when the most serious author begins: "Perhaps the author of 'I Sought Romance' would profit by a reading of certain passages from 'The Essay on Criticism';" and if Mr. R. P. will look at Kipling, he will discover that Kipling wrote both good and bad verse. Space will not permit a greater analysis of "Sublimation's Song" than this: "Oh, I would have you grant, O Lord, to those who are not of the world, the patience of the man who seems not to write."

Not knowing of the things he writes about: To know that thought and skill alone is not enough, but missing this good and bad, and to avoid facility and imitation of all the fashions dull, indifferent, and so that the future may not hold damnation."

PENN. A. C. WINS TILT FROM HAVERFORD NINE

Clubmen Gain 4-0 Victory After Nine Closely Played Innings

Haverford's nine unofficially opened its spring baseball campaign on Saturday, April 9, in a practice game with Penn. A. C. The collegians were in the third end of a 4-0 score at the end of nine chilly innings, but the showing was far from discouraging to the coach and to the handful of spectators who braved the weather to witness the game.

H. Supplee twirled the entire game for the Quakers and gave a fine exhibition of early season pitching. The trained eyes of the Penn. A. C. men collected several hits from his mazy play by his team-mates accounted for three unearned runs gained by the Philadelphia nine. Supplee fanned eleven of the thirty-two men to face him.

Penn. A. C. broke into the scoring column in the third frame when Kreutz walked, advanced to second on a wild throw by A. Supplee, stole third, and crossed the plate on Anderson's smash to right. The Quaker momentum got off further scoring by accounting for two innings later found Supplee in difficulty again. Townsend, who had replaced Kreutz on the base, was hit by A. C. slashed a stinging double to left. The inning should have ended without further mishap but Trippe, the Haverford shortstop, booted Carter's bounder allowing Townsend to score. Hendrick flied out to Saxpers to end the inning.

Only three men faced Supplee in the three succeeding frames. His mystifying curves and speed yielded only pop flies and may rollers off the bat. The efforts of the Quakers to ride the ball off looked like another killing in the ninth when the former Blair pitcher whiffed the first man and put over two strikes on Young. At this point Supplee lost control momentarily, and walked the former Detroit infielder, who reached the keystone sack on a wild throw and romped home when Gault poked a wide one through Abbott and Gawthrop for a fluke home run. The inning.

HAVERFORD OPENS SEASON AGAINST DREXEL, AWAY

Halas Will Send Either H. Supplee Or Kingham to Mound

Haverford's baseball team will officially open the 1927 season next Saturday afternoon when Drexel will be met on the Strawberry and Clothier Field, 63rd and Walnut streets, Philadelphia.

Drexel defeated Textile last Saturday, 9-2. The Engineers lost their opening game of the season to Penn. 20-2. Stamp and Foley, veterans of several seasons, have been batting hard. Together they accounted for six base hits, and five runs last Saturday to a brilliant start. The two connected safely three times against Penn. Brittain, Thompson, and Calhoun have been doing the hitting for Drexel. One of these three will be on the mound against Haverford, either Kingham or H. Supplee will be selected for the Scarlet and Black. Last year Kingham downed the Engineers 4-3, due to a brilliant ninth inning.

Haverford batting line-up: Trippe, ss.; Abbott, lb.; Saunders, cf.; Kingham, cf.; A. Supplee, c.; Hendrick, 2b.; Vaneman, 2b.; H. Supplee or Kingham, p.

FOUNDERS LOSES TWICE IN SEASON'S OPENERS

Merion Also Beaten in First Week of Intramural Baseball

Intramural baseball began its season in full force with a three-cornered tie for first place at the end of the first week of play. South Barclay, Center Barclay and North Lloyd are battling for the lead with Merion in fourth place with one defeat and Founders in the cellar with two. South Lloyd has yet to lose a game, while North Barclay's first game ended in a tie.

South Barclay played on March 24 when it defeated Merion 4-0. Its opponent Founders, could garner but six. Smart base running and many free passes and errors, together with a generous proportion of hits from the South batsmen drove one runner from the mound and eventually admitted a severe drubbing to another.

North Lloyd wins its season by bumping Merion, 14-13. Berlinger, Lloyd's mound ace, held the upper hand until the last few innings when a determined Merion rally brought Thomas into the box. He was shelled from the hill a few minutes later, in a barrage of base hits. With the score tied at 13-13 in the last frame, two dropped pop flies gave North Lloyd the margin of victory. Gilson's home run was the hitting feature of the day.

HAVERFORD FRESHMEN DOWN LOWER MERION

Morris High Scorer in 43-38 Defeat of Schoolboys on Board Track

Deprived of four of its men, the Haverford Freshmen track team barely nosed out the Lower Merion High School sprinters, 43-38, on March 23, on the boards. The Rabbits placed first in five of the nine events. The Scarlet and Black first-year men tallied the majority of their points in the field events and in the middle distance runs. Morris was the high scorer of the meet with thirteen points, while Turner and Swan tied for second place, both registering eight points. Knipe, Lower Merion sprint man, by tallying seven points, led the scoring for the Red and White.

Morris Wins Discus Houseman, captain of the Lower Merion team, out-spirited Turner and broke the tape in the thirty-yard dash, while Greenbeck, the winner's teammate, finished a close third. Morris had little trouble in getting first place in the discus throw and the shot-put, while Swan was easily the best man in his recent practice, he has had. Forsythe distanced his nearest opponent by forty feet.

For the third time this year, the Freshmen were obliged to cede all three places in the high jump to their opponents. Corriagan, Knipe and Dauber finished in the order mentioned, the winner's leap being 5 feet 5 inches. Smith, of Lower Merion, bested Morris and Blair in the half-mile run. Rudenoff finished a close second to Otley in the mile run, which was won in the excellent time of five minutes.

The summary: 30-yard dash—Won by Houseman, L. M.; second, Turner, H.; third, Greenbeck, L. M. Time—4 sec. 50-yard hurdles—Won by Smith, L. M.; second, Morris, H.; third, Blair, H. Time—42 sec. 40-yard dash—Won by Turner, H.; second, Smith, L. M.; third, Duxton, H. Time—40 sec. 80-yard dash—Won by Martin, H.; second, Ryan, H.; third, Lloyd, L. M. Time—24.1. Mile run—Won by Otley, L. M.; second, Rudenoff, H.; third, Jones, H. Time—5 min. High jump—Won by Corriagan, L. M.; second, Knipe, L. M.; third, Deuber, L. M. Height—5 ft. 5 in. Shot-put—Won by Morris, H.; second, Swan, H.; third, Sigal, L. M. Distance—47 ft. 6 in.

NETMEN TRIUMPH IN YEAR'S FIRST MATCH

Osteopathy Vanquished 5-1; Team Shows Need of Practice

The Haverford College tennis team scored its first victory of the current season last Saturday afternoon on the home courts, by vanquishing the Osteopathy courtmen with the loss of only one match. The coldness of the weather and a strong wind seriously handicapped the players, making a high order of tennis virtually impossible.

Lester went down to defeat before the steadiness of his opponent by the score of 6-3, 6-1. The Haverford captain displayed a very inferior brand of tennis in his singles match, but showed a decided improvement in his doubles match.

Webster Wins Easily Webster had little difficulty in performing Davis in straight sets and performed very well considering the small amount of practice he has had. Forsythe met with little opposition in his contest, and showing no traces of his recent illness ran through his match rapidly, winning the second set without the loss of a point.

Evans wasted no time in winning his match with Von Lohr, 6-3, 6-1. With his service working fairly consistently and a strong forehand drive he scored placements at will in his less accomplished opponent. Summary: SINGLES Herbert, Osteopathy, defeated Lester, Haverford, 6-3, 6-7. Webster, Haverford, defeated Davis, Osteopathy, 6-2, 6-0. Forsythe, Haverford, defeated Von Lohr, Osteopathy, 6-4, 6-1. Evans, Haverford, defeated Von Lohr, Osteopathy, 6-4, 6-1.

DOUBLES Lester and Evans, Haverford, defeated Hoyet and Davies, Osteopathy, 6-1, 6-2. Webster and Cary, Haverford, defeated Duher and Von Lohr, Osteopathy, 6-1, 6-2.

INTRA-MURAL CROWN WON BY SOUTH LLOYD, 40-14

Close Season With Record of Five Wins Against One Defeat

South Lloyd's fast-moving quintet scored a 40-14 victory over South Barclay on Monday, March 21, and thus gained undisputed possession of the intra-mural basketball crown. The victory over South gave the Lloyd dribblers a season's record of five victories against one defeat.

South Lloyd began the scoring when Richardson caged two pretty goals from the floor. This advantage was brief, as Miller retaliated for Barclay shortly afterward. The remainder of the half was filled with vain efforts to score by each team. South Lloyd had possession of the ball most of the time, but failed to run up a large lead because of poor shooting. The score at half-time was 10-10.

In the final period, South Lloyd began finding the basket and an avalanche of field goals completely submerged Barclay. The South Barclay team tallied only twice, while Lloyd team tallied most at will. It was seldom the Barclay five had the ball. At such times its long passes were easily intercepted and converted into scores by South Lloyd. Richardson, who gathered eighteen points for the new champions, led the scoring.

DREXEL TENNIS MATCH

After decisively defeating Osteopathy Haverford's tennis team will meet Drexel at Haverford next Wednesday, on the home courts. Last year the Scarlet and Black courtmen were victorious, 5 to 1. The Haverford lineup will be the same with the possible exception that Webster will be playing Number 1, and Captain Lester Number 2. Forsythe and Evans will be the third and fourth singles. The best doubles team will be Lester and Evans, and the second will be Webster and Cary.

EXEC. ATHLETIC COMMITTEE CHANGES MANAGER AWARD

Managers to Receive a Special "H" Baseball Schedule Ratified

At a meeting of the Executive Athletic Committee, held on Monday, March 21, two important items of business were attended to. The baseball schedule, as published in the News, was officially ratified, and a new ruling was put into effect concerning the awards to managers.

The proper recognition of the services of the Varsity managers has long puzzled the committee. Several plans have been tried, but none has proved satisfactory. Contrary to the previous stand of the committee, it was finally agreed to create a "Manager's H". The Executive Athletic Committee is composed of President Comfort, Dean Palmer and Dr. Herbert Taylor, in the absence of Dr. James A. Babitt; W. F. Webster, '27; S. Hoskins, '27; John B. Hoopes, '21; W. T. Kirke, '16; C. R. Hiechman, '06.

The following changes have been made in the By-Laws of the Haverford College Athletic Association: Article II, Section 2. The awards which may be given in recognition of athletic ability and service to the college: "Varsity letter," "Varsity Manager's letter," Class Numismata. Article II, Section 6. (Last paragraph). In each department the "Varsity Manager's H" and sweater shall be identical in color and style respectively with the regulation "Varsity H" and sweater prescribed for that department. The "Varsity Manager's H" in each department shall be the prescribed "Varsity H" with a bar of same color (black for basketball) 1/4 inch by 3 inches below base of letter.

SAMUEL BETTLE, '65, DIES

Was Former Chairman of Trans-Atlantic Freight Conference
Samuel Bettle, '65, for many years general freight agent of the International Navigation Company, died April 6 at his home in Haverford. He was sixty-one.
Mr. Bettle entered the employ of the Navigation Company in 1886, the year following graduation, and in five years was made freight agent in Philadelphia. Two years later he was promoted to the position of general freight agent, having charge of the company's eight departments in America and seven in Europe. He was formerly chairman of the Transatlantic Freight Conference, composed of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines running from north Atlantic ports.
Mr. Bettle was born in Oakland, N. J., the son of the late William and Mary Sharpless Bettle, and is survived by his wife and his son, Griscum Bettle.

Their Education

When you do not definitely provide for the education of your children in case of your death, you gamble with their futures. And that is something you can ill afford to do.

There is a form of Provident Mutual Insurance that will enable you to guarantee the education of your children, just as there are other forms for other needs. Write for the booklet, "Kent Blueprints His Future."

Haverford Debators Score 3-0 Victory

Deny That Undergraduates in American Colleges Are Wasting Time

Taking the negative side of the question, "Resolved that most of the undergraduates at American Colleges and Universities are wasting their time," the Haverford debaters retrieved their previous defeat by Juniata with a 3-0 decision over the strong Bowdoin College team in a debate held in Roberts Hall on the evening of March 24.
The Haverford team, composed of J. L. Heller and S. S. Sargent, of the class of '27; E. D. Hollander, '28, and C. W. Miller, '30, alternated, endeavored to prove the usefulness of the various forms of college life taken separately. Heller, speaking for the affirmative, pointed out that in addition to accumulating a certain amount of credit, methods of study, much more important than the facts themselves, were acquired.

Sargent, on the side of extra-curriculum activities, indicated the development of a sound mind and body accruing from athletics, and the opportunity of putting theory and leadership into practice in the other activities, which, he claimed, was the practical side of education. Hollander pointed to the importance of college as a process of getting adjusted to life, correlating early training and prejudices.

"Booze, Women and Gambling" Bowdoin, represented by Hewitt, Doran, Palmer, and Rowe, alternately claimed as their principal argument that the Haverford debaters were merely picturing an ideal but unreal college life. They set up the average college man's reading matter such as College Humor and like magazines, and the old round of "Booze, women, and gambling" as examples of gross waste of time. Also, the disadvantages of fraternity life, and the strained relations between Harvard and Princeton were mentioned. In debating the same question, the Bowdoin team won over Lafayette the following night at the same place.

Dr. William E. Lunt, Professor of History at Haverford, a Bowdoin graduate, and former professor there, presided over the debate. Professor Newhall, of Haverford School; John Broadway, Philadelphia lawyer, and J. R. K. Scott, noted criminal lawyer, were the judges. The Haverford team was coached by Dr. Snyder, of the Haverford English department, while H. R. Brown coached the Bowdoin speakers.

Request Return Debate
The Bowdoin team expressed itself as well impressed with the treatment it received at Haverford and with the College, and requested a return match next year at Bowdoin. In addition to a liberal guarantee for a return debate, the Bowdoin team offered to arrange a schedule with enough other colleges in New England to make the trip worthwhile.

CARR AND HEDLEY TO HEAD HAVERFORDIAN

Elected Editor and Business Manager Respectively by Board

J. D. Carr, '29, and D. H. Hedley, '29, will head the editorial and business departments of The Haverfordian, respectively, for the academic year 1927-28. It was announced last week, following a meeting of the board of the College magazine on Tuesday.
Last May Carr achieved the unusual distinction of being elected editor of The Haverfordian during his Freshman year, while the publication of his historical romances aroused widespread comment. In addition to making The Haverfordian board, he was also a member of the Freshman debating team.

Hedley, who was chosen business manager following the resignation of T. H. Whittelsey, '28, was also elected to the staff of The Haverfordian in his Rhine year. During the past year he served as advertising manager. He has been actively engaged in extra-curricular activities since entering College and is now managing editor of the News, secretary of the Sophomore class, secretary of the Store Committee, and a member of the Debating Council.

Beatty Given Ad Post
The election of a circulation manager for next year was postponed for another month, due to the unusually heavy competition for the office. J. C. Beatty, '26, who served in the capacity of publication manager last year, was elected advertising manager, and the office of publication manager was abolished. Beatty is business manager of the '28 Record and assistant stage manager of the Cap and Bell plays.
Three new men were also elected to The Haverfordian board last Tuesday. B. Linn, '29, and G. P. Rogers, '30, were named as associate editors, and C. W. Hamilton, '29, was placed on the business board as an assistant manager. Linn has been contributing verse to The Haverfordian for the past two years, while Rogers has had several stories and book reviews published. Rogers' most notable contribution, "The God of the Gloves," appeared in the April issue.

Special lighting effects are among the many features of the costume presentation, "Dramatic Interludes," to be given in Roberts Hall on April 19, by Robert Granville, noted British dramatist. The stage lighting, arranged by the Chicago Stage Lighting Co., is said to represent some of the best work along this line ever done, and, according to advance press notices, materially enhances the affect of the dialogues given by Mr. Granville.

ELEPHANTS
The elephant is man's most intelligent helper. But—consider this interesting comparison:
An elephant is much larger than the electric motor of a "yarder" or logging machine. The "yarder" has the power of twenty elephants; it handles clusters of logs; it works dependably, twenty-four hours at a stretch, if necessary.
Twenty elephants would eat daily 10,000 pounds of green food, which a corps of attendants must gather. A motor "eats" nothing but electricity, supplied at the throw of a switch.
Power used in the modern industrial world is applied through electric motors—tireless "iron elephants" that are relegating antiquated machines to museums, along with such oldtime household articles as wash-tubs and ordinary irons—and stuffed elephants.
