50 ALUMNI SUPPORT WORK TO PROMOTE COLLEGE REQUESTS

Newly Formed Attorneys' Bequest Council Is Approved

HAVE 2-FOLD PROGRAM

Nearly fifty bequests are assured Haverford in the first replies to the general alumni letter mailed by W. Nelson L. West, '32, chairman of the newly formed Attorneys' Bequest Council.

"I'm pleased by the quick response," Mr. West says. "I did not anticipate that the idea would be so popular, but I am delighted. It would be splendid if it should become a tradition for every Haverfordian to arrange a bequest to the College."

At a meeting of a group of Members of the Eta from Philadelphia in a vicinity in the Haverford Club shortly before Christmas organization of the Bequest Council was started.

Comfort Names West and Burt

President Comfort, who presided, appointed Mr. West chairman and Mr. Howard Burt, '08, vice chairman.

The Bequest Council hopes to be able to report to the Board of Managers on next Alumni Day that more than 250 Haverfordians have written bequests to Haverford into their wills.

A two-fold program has been developed:

First, to encourage every Haverfordian to leave something to the College—a $100. minimum is suggested.

Second, to encourage every Haverfordian to mention the College when clients ask for suggestions on the disposal of their estates.

Most Benefactors Not Graduates

"The College owes its endowment largely to the bequests of Jacob P. Jones, Wistar Brown and a few others who are no longer here," Mr. West said. "Many alumni, when having their wills drawn, could make provision which, though not depriving their family of any essential, will help to put the College on a firm foundation for the future."

Haverford is not attempting something new, something that is untried. Cornell University, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Chicago, Johns Hopkins and other pioneers, and proved the effort worthwhile."

Engagements Announced by Cadbury and Conner

Mrs. Henry Dodge Nichols announced on Christmas Day the engagement of her daughter, Adele Louise Nichols, to J. M. Cadbury, '32. Miss Nichols is a senior at Bryn Mawr College, and lives in Tioga, near Philadelphia. The engagement was announced at Wilmington, Del. A date has been set as yet for the wedding. When he leaves college, Cadbury hopes to teach Biology. The engagement of Miss Ruth Swinburn of Highland Park to J. W. Conner, Jr., '32, was also announced during vacation.

Dean P. Lockwood Makes Plea for Patience in Use of College Library

Librarian Writes Letter to News, Pointing Out Scarcity of Shelf Space and Suitable Study Facilities

Dean P. Lockwood, Librarian and Professor of Latin, in a recent letter to the News, describing the crowded condition of the Haverford Library, requested that all users be patient and await the day when new and enlarged accommodations may be forthcoming.

Professor Lockwood compared the library to an industrial plant. "A library plant is like any other plant: when it gets beyond the one-man stage, it must have centralization, organization and co-ordination—with a physical equipment designed to the purpose. Just as the factory cannot be merely a larger edition of a one-man shop and the department store cannot be an enlarged village store, so the library of 100,000 or 200,000 volumes cannot be one huge hall, identical, save in size, with the one-room library which would meet the needs of an individual. Every increase in size brings an increase in complexity."

The letter indicated the shortage in available shelf space: "When shelves are as full as ours are, think what it means to add a four-foot set of volumes. There may be only six inches to spare on the shelf where the new set is to go, and on all the adjacent shelves—and in all the adjacent cases—in that whole section of the library. Already this has proven such a formidable obstacle that some collections or sets have had to be put out of their regular order in some hole or corner where space happened to be available."

To meet this rate of increase, the library has three possible methods: to place some of the less frequently used books "in storage" in some other part of the campus; to erect new overhead galleries; or to eliminate some of the exhibition cases and rearrange the floor space of the north and south wings.

Dr. Lockwood finished his letter by: "So let us be patient, as we submit every book to our chairs and tub elbows at our seats, and hope that the day will come soon when a new and beautiful library will rise to take the place of the old."

DR. JONES PRESENTS FAREWELL THURSDAY

Professor of Philosophy Points to Meeting's Inspirations

Dr. Rufus M. Jones, professor of Philosophy, delivered a farewell address at Meeting Thursday before his departure for the Orient, where he will join a commission in the study of just what is necessary for our great missionary organizations to accomplish.

Professor Jones opened his address with a brief history of missionary work in the United States. Just a few years ago a group of students at Williams College, headed by Samuel Mills, held an open air prayer meeting at which they dedicated their lives to foreign mission work. At a later date this same inspirational leader, Mills, organized a board of missionaries of his sect. Four years later another religious sect followed suit and the work has gone on with increasing efficiency to this day.

As an example of one of the greatest missionaries of the nineteenth century, Dr. Jones spoke about Livingstonstone, the man who worked in Africa and gave his life for his cause.

Missionary work today is carried on in all the outlying lands of the world, Japan, China, India, the Moslem World, and many far-off islands. This endeavor, the speaker explained, is beneficial for the spirit of Christianity, and it gives the real leaders and workers an outlet for doing much good. "The missionary must be a practical man, one clever in solving the ordinary problems of daily life."

Dr. Jones stated that he was as much worried about the United States as about the foreign lands he is going to study. There is, he said, the need in our own country to build up faith and vision along with our government. To accomplish great work we must link our lives with great spiritual forces.

In conclusion, telling how, as a student in Haverford College, he had first really felt the need and desire for religious life in Haverford Meeting, and how much that same Thursday Meeting had meant to him ever since, Dr. Jones asked all the students to pray for him as he faces the dangers of his journey. He explained that he realizes that he will be in grave physical danger, from bandits, the unsettled condition of the East, and especially from disease, but that as long as he knew he had the prayers and good wishes of his friends behind him, he could face it all bravely, with the expectations of all possible success.

BUCK HILL WEEKEND TO BE FEB. 26, 27

Gummere Announces Second Annual Haverford Outing

Another Haverford "week-end" will be held at the Inn at Buck Hill Falls, on February 26 and 27, according to F. B. Gummere, '32, chairman of the committee in charge. Gummere and the committee, which includes H. Norman Thorn, '04; Dean H. Tatum Brown, '03, and J. S. Curtis Harvey, '25, are making out a full program with the co-operation of the authorities at Buck Hill.

Saturday will be the feature day of the week-end. The morning will be given over to winter sports, and the facilities of the resort will be at the disposal of the Haverford guests. A hockey game with the Swarthmore College Hockey Club is planned for the afternoon.

In the evening the College musical clubs, which will be the guests of the Inn, will give a concert, and it will be followed by a dance, with music by the Haverford band.

The committee announces that, since the Inn has been enlarged, bigger rooms will be available at lower rates than last year. Gummere, urging a large attendance, states: "We hope to make this a yearly affair, and to do so we must receive the support of as many students and alumni as can attend. Start planning now to bring your girls, wives and families, as the case may be. Make this week-end a big success."

CHANCE FOR BETTER LIFE POINTED OUT BY FLIGHT

Professor Addresses Collection on Significance of New Year

Opening his talk with a verse, "Behold I make all things new," Dr. J. W. Pire, an assistant professor of Biblical Literature, addressed Tuesday Collection on the significance of the New Year.

Dr. Flight stated that there were many things which each of us might well leave behind, such as our grudges, prejudices, discouragements and bad habits. However, there are also many things which should be near us, such as the beginning of a new year, our hopes, intentions, friendships and aspirations.

Dr. Flight explained for the truly religious there is no need for the observance of time and its passage, and the new year makes no actual difference in the search for a better life. Still the beginning of a new year offers us a chance to start afresh toward another goal, one which will connect us with some person or force, superior to ourselves, that can aid us in our endeavor to get out of our slough into a more complete and useful existence.

VARSITY DEBATERS GAIN DECISION OVER ST. JOSEPH'S DEC. 18

Haverford Team Wins in Contest on Chain Store Question

VERDICT UNANIMOUS

Haverford's varsity debating team opened its season by defeating a delegation from St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia, Friday, December 18, in the Union. Attempting to disprove the statement, "Resolved, That Chain Stores are Detrimental to the Welfare of the Community," W. de Laguna, '32, and Zepher Jr., '32, and F. A. Van Denbergh, Jr., '33, won a unanimous decision of the judges.

The affirmative in assuming the burden of proof attempted to establish the premises that the chain store does not promote a condition most unfavorable to the welfare of the community, and that the merchant store drove the independent merchant from the community. Strong evidence also was placed on the proposition that the chain store drained the money out of the community into the great financial centers.

The position of the Haverford team was strengthened in opposing its opponent by presenting detailed statistical reports from the Department of Commerce and other sources. The negative emphasized the fact that the chain store offers a good product in clean, attractive establishments at a price from 10 to 14 per cent. lower than the independent merchant. It continued its argument by stressing the point that, insofar as there was a demand in the community for delivery and credit service, the independent merchant would remain in business by virtue of this type of clientele.

The proposition was one of particular interest also, being placed on this section of the country, although widely discussed in the South and Mid-West. Both the economic and social aspects of the subject found full treatment in the discussion.

St. Joseph's team is considered a strong opponent in that debating is required in the curriculum, and previous to the Haverford engagement its representatives had been undefeated for three successive years. In a debate last year with the same college Haverford's team met defeat in upholding the affirmative of the proposition, Resolved, that the U. S. Should Recede from Russia.

Dr. Rayner W. Kelsey, professor of History, served as debate chairman. Rev. Frederick R. Griffin, Mr. F. A. Cowen, professor of Jurisprudence at the University of Pennsylvania, and M. Naim, a member of the Philosophy department of Bryn Mawr College, were judges.

Future debates are being arranged with Lafayette on March 5; Cedar Crest, Oberlin and Delaware. The subjects have not been definitely decided upon.

W. B. SMITH '33 ATTENDS CONVENTION IN NEW YORK

Volunteer Missionary Movement Attracts 2200 Students

A convention of 2200 students met in Buffalo, N. Y., on December 30, under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement. Colleges from all parts of the United States and Canada were represented by delegations varying in size from one to twenty. Haverford was unofficially represented by W. B. Smith, Jr., '33, van der Brug, '32, and G. W. Mott, '32.

The main purpose of the convention was to recruit students for missionary work abroad. To accomplish this end John R. Mott, Kirby Gate, Samuel Zwerner, and other prominent men led discussion groups or addressed one of the eight mass meetings of the convention.

PRO BONO FUND LOW

This year's Alumni Pro Bono Fund, to January 8, 1932, totaled $3427.00 from 105 contributors. For the corresponding period last year $4166.00 was received from 470 alumni.

DR. CARPENTER DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS; FUNERAL HELD TUES.

Student Body, Faculty and Alumni Mourn Loss of Professor ON FACULTY 14 YEARS

Dr. James M. Carpenter died after a year's illness, in the Bryn Mawr Hospital, January 2.

Dr. Carpenter was associate professor of Romance Languages at Haverford College at the time of his death and had been a member of the faculty for fourteen years. He is survived by his wife, three children and a sister, Miss Alice Lazenby Carpenter. Serious illness last December made it necessary for him to undergo a major operation in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, but he returned to College for the second semester. He began teaching when College opened in September, but in October was forced to give up his classes, and was taken to the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

Graduated From Haverford

Dr. Carpenter was born in Pittsburgh on July 16, 1890, and graduated from Haverford in the class of 1912, having entered the Liberty Academy. The following year, 1913, he was awarded an M. A. degree from Haverford. The next three years, 1914-17, he spent as a member of the Cornell University faculty, and in 1917 joined the Haverford College faculty. In 1923 he took his Ph. D. degree in Romance Languages at Cornell.

One of the most popular members of the faculty, Dr. Carpenter often appeared as a guest soloist with the College's musical clubs. He was a member of the American Romance Language Association and the Phi Beta Kappa Honorary Society.

Prominent as Student

In his undergraduate days Dr. Carpenter was prominent in musical organizations, including the Mandolin Club and the Cap and Bells. He also took part in dramatic and opera productions and was assistant manager of the 1912 "Record" and a member of the Triangle Society. Dr. Carpenter possessed a remarkably beautiful baritone voice and was in much demand as a leader of group singing. In addition, he was a member of the Orpheus Club of Philadelphia, one of the finest choruses in the East.

Classes were cancelled on Tuesday afternoon, when the funeral was held at 2208 Chestnut Street. He was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and the faculty.

THE NEWS EDITORIAL POLICY

Customs Committee

A fair-sized stream of public opinion here is always turned in the direction of abolishing the Customs Committee. People claim that the Freshmen should not be distinguished from the others, that the rules are foolish, purposeless. We personally feel that some supervision along present lines and in pursuit of a consistent policy is quite worth while.

The general rules (attend homes games, grass, help managers of student activities etc.) would be more or less acceptable to anyone. The work must be done and each year the Freshmen are expected to do it. As an attempt to form good habits or on the grounds that at least a quarter of the College will be doing the right thing, we can justify compulsory attendance at home games, grass and remove no food from the dining room rules.

The clothing rules are usually the greatest storm centers. Granting that the tag gets them acquainted with each other, why have anything else? Two general arguments appear in answer to this: First, to build up an esprit de corps, and second, to reduce any prep school conceit. The first is undeniably a worthy goal to strive for; whether it can be reached via caps and ties depends on the way the Rhinies regard these emblems. If they are thought of as badges of slavery, as marks of an unfair discrimination, they do not serve their purpose; we feel that the Freshman is unconsciously a little proud of them, that he feels it is part of the game like a fraternity initiation, and that that will be a pleasant memory to him. Of course, some people will be unable to see this viewpoint and some will not concede it any worth, but we still maintain that it does exist. Prep school conceit is beyond discussion, whether it should be punished or disregarded or even whether there is such a thing could be argued forever. Certainly it is the least important of the factors which we have considered.

If you are to have the rules at all they should be enforced. Everyone admits that the punishments should be for violations fair and consistent throughout the year. Ridicule, the method used in the past, has proved a double-edged sword which has been used by the opposition against the Customs Committee. "It must be a foolish system," they say, "which makes Freshmen do such utterly senseless things." Yet is not this sort of penalty more in the spirit of initiation than some term of hard labor or other more conventional penance? We feel that it is both more appreciative and more effective.

In short we feel that the principles behind the rules, the rules themselves, and the means of enforcing them are sound. We also feel that the position of the College on this matter should be not merely accepted, but thought through and will consequently welcome any contributions on the subject.

James McFadden Carpenter, Jr.

Understanding, sympathetic, and intensely human, Professor Carpenter has been more than a teacher to almost every student who took his courses. Since 1909 there have been only two classes at College with whom he did not come in contact and the scores of men who have graduated in that time all felt that he was one of them.

This is perhaps the basic idea in any appreciation of the long service he gave the College. He thoroughly knew, loved and taught others to appreciate his subject but the unique thing about his classes was the spirit of camaraderie which prevailed in them. To meet him was to feel a bond of fellowship which gained him many devoted friends among the students he taught. The student body, past and present, was shocked, sad to hear of his death. The College misses him and nearly twenty classes will join with us in our sympathy with Mrs. Carpenter and appreciation of her husband's contribution to Haverford.

MAIN LINE REPERTORY TO PRESENT LINCOLN NOVEL

The Main Line Repertory Theater will present its second play of the season, "The Beloved Meddler," in Roberts Hall on Wednesday night. The play is a dramatization of Joseph C. Lincoln's "Galusha the Magnificent," adapted by Alexander Dublin and directed by Herman Levinson.

If the play is successful here it will be taken to Broadway for professional presentation. Special student rates will be in force; downstairs seats will be fifty cents, and balcony seats a quarter to any student of Haverford College.

The Crow's Nest

L. H. Bowen, '34

Haverford Excavations

From a prominent man on the campus we learned during an hour's respite from last week's rainy weather the men whose job it is to do so swept out the huge puddle in front of the west-steps of Founder's Hall. At the bottom of it they found a full-grown bicycle!

"On Second Thought"

A short while ago the N. Y. Herald Tribune printed an editorial on Congressional investigations of which we will reprint the last paragraph:

"The undying faith in 'investigation and report,' remains the last refuge of a battered democracy. It is not 'Wharfbumfngmtfmgmtf'!"

That's what we always thought, but after meditating on the question for a while we wondered if it really would so much difference after all. Wouldn't we get the same result for instance, if we said "Ikgmbmdhacruat'x, or something similar?"

Poetry Department

While reading a biography of Ambrose Bierce we ran across his parody on "America." Are you listening?

"My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of felony,
Of thee I sing;
Land where my fathers died
Young witches and apple-
whips to the Quaker's hide,
And made him spring."

Wreck of Ole' Number 5

Our big story this week concerns a young man who applied for a job in Haverford's backfield for several years and is now cavorting on the basketball team in Jersey Number 5. After the Lehigh game last Saturday night this athlete was driving his roommate's car back to College. Because he had "razzed" his roommate on the way to Bethlehem for driving so slow, the roommate quietly suggested that Number Five take the wheel himself on the way back. He did so, and this is what happened.

Everything went perfectly well. The car couldn't make a hill in high drive, so the road's steep condition. Player Number 5 put the big Buick into second, then into first. Unfortunately, there were no more gear shifts he could use, for the car couldn't even make the snow-covered hill in first. The driver backed the car down the hill and into a private driveway so as to get a good start.

Now this driveway had two huge cement pillars, one on either side of the entrance. Player Number 5 drove between them and got a racing good start for the hill ahead of him, but again the car couldn't make the grade.

So he backed down again, this time so carefully that the comparisons in front asked him if everything was all right. "Sure, sure," he replied. When one of the other passengers saw one of the two pillars was off the right he fell pretty certain that everything wasn't all right, but to make sure he asked the driver again.

With the swashbuckler attitude characteristic of No. 5, he said, "Sure everything's O. K." At that moment a terrific impact took place somewhere on Bethlehem pike, shattering of glass was heard in the rear of the car as the rear window of a Buick broke, and a crash was heard as the spare tire of the same Buick crashed into the car's rear.

Potato Fight

A day before the holidays the waiters' door into the kitchen was plastered with mashed potatoes. At the moment the waiters were busy, but noticed the plastering. Mr. Williamson was sitting at the faculty table with his back to the door, and Mr. Chase was sitting almost directly opposite. Go ahead and form your own conclusions. Everybody else did!

But if your conclusions are the same as everybody else's, they are wrong. No members of the faculty threw mashed potatoes at any other member of the staff. What happened was that Walter Lingerman, slipped, causing a bowl of the pulverized spuds to help decorate the door.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

By Horace K. Dugdale, '33

S. H. Redner, Amherst 1930, has always believed that prominent men do not quarrel what he said to them when they are introduced to people. An opportunity to meet the governor of Michigan proved his theory. As he was about to shake hands with the governor he said, "I killed my grandmother today" to which the gov replied, "I'm very glad to make your acquaintance."

He Asked Jean Harlow

A cadet at Virginia Polytechnic Institute wrote Jean Harlow and invited her to attend the Thanksgiving dances at the school. Although she could not accept due to school work, she did write him a personal reply. Perhaps one reason for his asking her was the novel favor presentation they had at the dance. In the center of the ballroom there was a rose archway on which were the class rings of the cadets. As each cadet claimed his ring, he was required to kiss his guest as he placed the ring upon her finger.

Attendance Increasing

Dean Walters of Swarthmore published his annual report on college attendance recently, indicating a general gain in spite of the business depression. He announced a decrease of 1.8 per cent. in the attendance at the women's colleges on his list, which he pointed out showed "that where families have felt the financial pinch, some of them have continued their sons at college and have kept their daughters home."

Three Notes on Harvard

Barry Wood, '32, three letter man and Phi Beta Kappa, did not apply for a Rhodes scholarship even though he was almost sure of getting one. When asked why he didn't, he answered, "I can get a good job."

There are over 4200 employees at Harvard. Most of them are professors, lecturers and instructors. The remainder of about one academic employee for every five students. The other 2700 are cast in non-academic roles, one for every three students. This one debunks the claim that large colleges cannot give the individual as much personal attention as the small one.

A few Harvard students who apply for work each year are entering on a social register which is used to supply men for fashionable girls' finishing school dances and debutante parties. Not willing to defray the minor expenses for dress etc. for these affairs themselves, the men are demanding pay for attending each function.

Music

We recommend especially this week's program of the Philadelphia Orchestra to the many lovers of Richard Wagner's works. An all-Wagner program it is, with selections from five Wagnerian operas. The conductor of the concert will be under the direction of Stokowski. The Metropolitan Opera House, Broad and Poplar streets, will be the location for the concert.

Opening with the Love Music from the second act of "Tristan and Isolde," the remainder of the program consists of numbers from the operas of "Die Walkure," "Siegfried and the Rhine Daughters" and the "Song of the Three Rhine Daughters" from "Das Rheingold"; from "Die Walkure" will be "Song of the Valkyries," "Siegfried Mounting the Rock" from "Siegfried"; and the scene between Siegfried and the Rhine Daughters and the powerful "Immolation of the Gods" from the final opera, "Gotterdammerung."

Paul Althouse, tenor, the leading male singer, will sing the parts of Siegfried and Tristan, and Elsa Althouse, soprano, will sing the roles of Isolde and Brunnhilde. Other soloists include members of the Curtis Institute of Music.

The New York "Met" will give two operas this Tuesday evening at the Academy of Music. The first will be "La Zoraima" and Humperdinck's popular "Hansel and Gretel." Rosa Ponselle will sing the role of Zoraima in the first opera. It is interesting to note that this work was given its American premiere by the Metropolitan Company just December 2, last. Serafin will direct.

"Thais," that ever-popular opera by Massenet which this week's program of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company Thursday evening at the Academy of Music. The title role is to be taken by Bianca Saroya, Philadelphia soprano, and John Charles Thomas will sing the part of Athanael. Ivan Steschenko will be heard in the role of Palemon, and Maud Runyon, contralto, will make her American debut in the role of Albine.

And Saturday afternoon that grand old man, Paderewski, will give his annual Philadelphia recital at the Academy at 2:30. Only four composers names appear on his program: Schumann, whose "Symphonic Etudes" will be played; Mozart, represented by the well-known "Piano Concerto in G major, and a lion's share, with the B minor sonata, G minor ballade, three etudes, nocturne in G major, two mazurkas and the E flat minor polonaise; and Franz Chopin, whose "No. 1" Flat. Paderewski, now well over seventy years of age, is appearing in this country on his fortieth concert tour this year. Pianists come and go, but we wish he could go on forever.

Hunt B. Jones, '34

Mrs. Edward D. Snyder will be hostess at the third in the series of student-faculty teas, to be held in the Union Sunday afternoon, from four to six o'clock.

In The Mail

To the Editor of The News:

DEAR SIR: The Haverford Centenary Fund spent in the last year $37,000 in an effort to advertise the college to the alumni. A great deal of this money was spent in sending letters addressed to every individual alumnus, followed by letters, questionnaires, brochures, all at a great outlay for postage, typing, printing and stationery. The publicity experts handling the matter apparently believe that Haverfordians must be reminded of the existence of the college, and of its virtues. The friends of the college behind the drive obviously agree to this. But to the mind of some alumni, and I am one of them, most of this money which might enrich the college treasury, is falling on barren ground.

The number of Haverfordians who must be contacted of the value of Haverford cannot be as great as these men assume, and after all, it is in questionable taste for us to tell one another how really good we are. Thain, too, even if many alumni are convinced of the great value of the revolutionary curriculum changes, etc., how many can afford to give largely? How many alumni of even a great university give largely during their lifetimes?

Harvard has had great success in collecting money, and now has more than 100 millions endowment. Last year the treasurer received in gifts and legacies $1,000,000 in addition to sums for pensions from the Carnegie Foundation. How much of it came from living people? There were only five contributions of more than $200,000 from any individual or family for the use of Harvard College. Mr. E. S. Harkness gave over four million, Mr. J. P. Morgan gave $50,000, Mr. Henry Lyman $25,000, the Strauss family $70,000, and Mr. H. H. Flagler $50,000. The college received no other large sums from individuals. The rest of the money came from a number of bequests and from foundations. Let the managers of the Haverford Centenary Fund note the latter. We are not likely to interest a man like Mr. Harkness, nor do we number great industrial bankers among our alumni, but we can and should make direct effort toward interesting the administrators of some of the great funds. During the great drive in 1920, Haverford succeeded in interesting only one such fund. The General Education Board gave $125,000. But last year, with no drive at all, Harvard received from the same board $400,000 toward the Laboratory of Physics, and from the International Education Board $1,001,973.76 for a Laboratory of Biology. The Rockefeller Foundation gave $265,000.

If Haverford is as good as our publicity expert says, he should see that those whose business it is to give money to educational institutions should hear of it, and send the alumni (most of whom claim to be poor and many of whom are) the trouble of throwing form letters into the waste-basket.

Very truly yours,

AMES JOHNSTON, '25.

FORMULATE SYSTEM OF ORDERING BOOKS

Students Will Sign Order Forms for Textbooks; Eliminates Losses

A new plan for ordering text books has been worked out by H. Tatnall Brown, Jr., Dean, and Mr. E. S. McCawley, of E. S. McCawley & Co., Inc., College book agents. The plan is designed to safeguard more effectively than heretofore the interests of both the undergraduates and the book store.

Under the new scheme, each professor, when taking orders for a new book in his course, will hand out individual order blanks to be filled out by students desiring copies. The professor himself will fill out an order blank for the total number of copies ordered. When the books arrive at the book store, one of the signs, individual order slips will be placed in each book, and a student calling for his copy will receive the one containing his slip. The slip will serve as his receipt for payment.

If, a certain length of time after the arrival of the books at the book store, any student has not claimed his copy, he can be identified by his order slip and notified to obtain it. If, within reasonable time after notification, he still has failed to claim the book, his order slip will be sent to College and he will automatically be billed for the book.

By this system, a definite check is placed on those who order books and fail to claim them, and the danger of the supply running short due to the purchase of books by those who have failed to order in advance is eliminated. Heretofore, there has been no means for the book store to tell who has ordered books and who has not.

NEW YORK'S ALUMNI GROUP DINES FRIDAY

Dr. Hotson, Sigmund Spaeth, D. Falconer and Al-lendoerfer Invited

The Haverford Society of New York will hold its annual Mid-Winter Dinner this Friday at 7 o'clock, in the Harvard Club building in New York City. An interesting feature of the dinner will be the sliding scale by which tickets may be secured. Through this device alumni attending the dinner may pay any price for their tickets they desire.

The scale "slides" so much that the treasurer of the society, C. A. Robinson, '28, will issue tickets without charge, if necessary. Thus no one will need to miss the dinner on account of the charge.

Guests at the dinner will be Dr. J. L. Hotson, professor of English; Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, '05; Douglas Falconer, '12, now associate director of the Emergency Unemployment Relief Fund for New York State, and C. B. Allendoerfer, '32, who was recently appointed a Rhodes scholar.

Victor Schorperle, '11, president of the society, announces that there were over seventy present at the dinner last year, and expresses the hope that there will be an even larger attendance this year.

Dr. Carpenter Dies After Long Illness

"The death of Dr. Carpenter removed a marked personality from our community. Having been associated with him, with the exception of four years, ever since 1908, when he entered Haverford as a freshman, I have had an opportunity to know whence was his affection for Haverford and how deep was his loyalty to her ideals. Endowed in an unusual degree with certain social and musical gifts, he was a welcome companion in undergraduate activities, and his talent as a linguist made his classes in the Romance languages a memorable experience during the past decade."

Due to a late change in the basketball schedule the date of the Freshman-Junior Dance has had to be postponed one day from Friday, the 12th of February, to Saturday, the 13th. This announcement was made by the committee the latter part of last week after all attempts on their part to have the game changed had failed. The committee has decided to start the affair promptly at 8 P. M., so that the usual four hours of dancing may be enjoyed.
The dance will be held in the gym, as the Merion Cricket Club was considered too small.

QUINTET LOSES TO SOUTH JERSEY LAW AND LEHIGH

Rally by Camdenites in Second Half Wins; Powerful Lehigh Five Sinks Fifteen Field Goals in 38-16 Victory

CAPTAIN GUMMERE LEADS SCORERS

Two losses were sustained by the Scarlet and Black basketball team in the two weeks immediately before and after the holidays. On the night of December 16th South Jersey Law School won on the home floor, 26-20, while last Saturday the courtmen trekked to Bethlehem and sustained a 38-16 defeat at the hands of a stronger and more smoothly working combination, representing Lehigh University.

In the pre-Holiday game South Jersey Law outfit handed Haverford its second defeat by a 26-23 score. Haverford played good ball the first half to pile up a 14-9 lead at the intermission, largely due to the brilliant performance of Captain Gummere. During this time Flaccus was hurt through a collision which threw him flat on the floor. He was unable to finish the entire game, being in only a short time in the second half. After a fine spurt Haverford had a bad slump in the second frame and allowed the opponents to run up a considerable lead on them. Then too late, the Quakers managed to pull up within three points of the leaders when the game ended.

Gummere High Scorer
Gummere led the home team with nine points scored. Scattergood followed with seven, and the remainder of the score was divided between Flaccus, Azpell and Harman. This game was an upset, for South Jersey Law was supposed to have one of the weakest teams in the schedule.

Lehigh started a second quintet which remained in action for seven minutes. These reserves piled up the seven-point lead early in the fracas, but when the Scarlet and Black began to pull up the Bethlehem coach removed all five of the seconds and sent in the varsity. Under the leadership of Captain Ware this combination soon pulled out in front, and from then on the issue was never in doubt. Lehigh led at half-time, 16-7.

Haverford Passing Weak
Most of the Haverford scoring came via the foul route. Flaccus and Scattergood, local forwards, were adept at sinking the free throws, accounting for eight points between them. The Rhine center, Harmon, made two foul-toss points, and Gummere and Azpell were responsible for the rest. The second half was all Lehigh. The Brown and White sharpshooters penetrated the Haverford defense almost at will, and ran up twenty-four points, while the Main Liners were garnering nine. Most of Lehigh's scoring was done from the floor, since only eight of the thirty-eight points were the result of foul tries.

Captain Ware at center and Bray at forward were the big guns of the Brown and White attack, getting eight and nine points, respectively. Haverford equaled the free-throw record of their opponents, but was woefully lacking in pass-work, and as a consequence was forced to shoot from the center of the court.

RICHIES LOSE AT SOCCER

Family Team Beaten by Moorestown on New Year's Morning, 5-0

A soccer team composed of members of the Richie family played the Moorestown Field Club on New Year's morning, losing by a 5-0 score on a muddy field. Since most of the Richie tribe are used to forward positions, they found it hard to form a satisfactory defense. The field club scored twice in the first quarter and three times in the last.

Two Haverford alumni and two undergraduates were in the Richie lineup. R. H. Richie, '26, and D. S. Richie, '30, received all-American berths as members of the Haverford team. Tom and Russell Richie are the two now attending the college, who competed. The ages of the Richie team ranged from thirteen to forty, the oldest player being William Richie, Sr., who captained the Cornell eleven in the first decade of the century.

Springfield is Awarded I. C. Soccer Championship

At its annual meeting in New York Saturday the Intercollegiate Soccer Association awarded this year's championship to Springfield College, provided that Springfield can get A. U. cards to prove the amateur standing of every one of their players who participated in any one of their intercollegiate contests of the past season. Should they fail, then they become associate members of the league and Pennsylvania will get the championship. Under the present arrangement Haverford is third, otherwise second. Penn State is fourth and Syracuse fifth.

Ranking of the first five colleges is given below:

College	W.	T.	L.	Goals per game
Springfield	4	0	0	3.75
Pennsylvania	6	1	0	2.57
Haverford	5	2	0	1.7
Penn State	2	3	0	1.2

DEAN BROWN RE-ELECTED TO POST IN M. A. S. C. A. A.

Chosen Again As Vice President; Dr. Babbitt Talks on Conference Plans

At the conference of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Association, held at the University Club in Philadelphia during the Christmas holidays, H. Tatnall Brown, Jr., Dean, who presided at the opening of the meeting, was re-elected vice president of the organization, while Dr. Davis, president of Stevens Institute, was elected president. Dr. LeRoy Mercer, Dean of Athletics at the University of Pennsylvania, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Dr. Mercer presented a report on the plan of President Thomas S. Gates, of the University of Pennsylvania, for the placing of football coaches on a par with other members of the faculty and for the decommercializing of the game.

During the conference Dr. James A. Babbitt, Haverford's former director of athletics, gave a talk in favor of the formation of an informal league of ten small colleges which are natural rivals in football. The league would not be an exclusive conference, but would enable its members to pick their opponents from among colleges of their own size and class. Haverford and Swarthmore would both be members of the league and, under the plan as set forth at the conference, they would meet in football approximately once every two years.

SOCCER ASSOCIATION ARRANGES SCHEDULE AT MEETING IN N. Y.

George C. Thayer Memorial Cup to Be Awarded to Winner Each Year

SIX TEAMS IN LEAGUE

At the first regular annual meeting of the newly formed Middle Atlantic Soccer Association held in New York last Friday evening at the Princeton Club final arrangements for the coming season were completed. Representing Haverford were Dean H. Tatnall Brown, vice president of the association, and E. T. Sachman, '33, manager of the soccer team.

Members of the meeting enjoyed a delightful dinner at Princeton University's Quiet Club, and then proceeded with the unfinished and new business. Secretary A. Paul Patton, Pennsylvania, announced that through the kindness of the Thayer family, of Philadelphia, the association had been presented with adequate funds for the large cup symbolic of the championship. It is to be known as the George C. Thayer Memorial Cup and is to run in perpetuity. It will be awarded each year to the team finishing first among the six members of the league, no college being able to retain possession of it permanently by any definite number of championships. The question of a replica to be awarded the winner of the cup for its own permanent retention was discussed, but will not be decided upon definitely until later. Special insignia for team members may also be presented along with the cup.

Schedules Accepted
Chief among the new business was final completion and ratification of the members' schedules. The constitution and by-laws provided that the arrangement of games between the various colleges of the league shall be made at the time of this annual meeting in New York. But as this date is rather late for arranging schedules which include games with outside teams, and which must be obtained in the fall, it was decided that henceforth representatives of the members of the association shall meet at a convenient date during the soccer season to agree upon dates for the coming year. In this way a good deal of the confusion and difficulty experienced Friday in getting satisfactory dates for next fall would be avoided in the future.

Those institutions composing the new league are Cornell, Princeton, Lehigh, Swarthmore, Pennsylvania and Haverford. Schedules have so been arranged that contests will be for each team be played on a three-and-two alternating home-and-away basis. Next fall Haverford will play its last three league games at home. Princeton will be the Scarlet and Black's first league opponent, being host to Haverford on October 8. Lehigh on November 5, will be the next, after a four-game interval with outside teams, in a game to be played at Bethlehem. Then will follow three home contests featuring Pennsylvania, Swarthmore and Cornell in the order named.

COACH GEIGES INTERVIEWED
Coach Elwood Geiges was recently interviewed by the Philadelphia Public Ledger on his ideas of Gridiron Training. Coach Geiges stressed the point that his experiences at Haverford were most pleasant and due to his mind the college athlete was a more responsive pupil than the high-school athlete due to his maturity and judgment.

Courtmen to Play Stevens and Dickinson ; Grad Students Lead League

HAVERFORD QUINTET TO ENGAGE IN TWO HARD COURT TILTS

Meet Dickinson at Carlisle; Stevens Comes Here for Contest Saturday

BOTH TEAMS POWERFUL

During the coming week Haverford's basketballers will see action in two hard games, the first with Dickinson at Carlisle on Wednesday and the second against Stevens on the home court Saturday night. The latter game will be preceded by a tilt between the Haverford Jayvees and the U. of P. Evening School of Accounts and Finance at 7:15.

Haverford will have to step fast in order to stay in competition with veteran quintets that they will meet this week. On paper the Dickinson five appears much stronger than last year's all star with the inclusion of luminaries, teamed with Hughes, a graduate from the Freshman squad of last year, was expected to perform even more brilliantly than last season's team. The opposite has been the case. Pratt Institute, of Brooklyn, opened the season for the Red and White by unexpectedly trimming them, 29-25. Crescent A. C. of Philadelphia, by thrashing Coach McAndrews' charges the next night, 51-18, and ending a rather disastrous week-end in Manhattan. The defeat by Crescent was expected by the Red and White five to date seems to indicate that it is a team that has failed to work together. A glance at the line-up easily confirms that opinion. Captain "Joe" Myers, at center, is the outstanding star of the team and one of its outstanding performers. He has rolled up more points than anyone else on his team to date, shining despite its losses. Two veteran guards, Fredericks and Lipinski, holdovers from last year's powerful machine, complete a quintet where there is room for only one new man.

JAYVEES' SCHEDULE LISTS SIX CONTESTS

Thomasmen to Face U. of P. Evening School on Saturday Night

Six games will be played by the Haverford Junior Varsity during the remainder of the winter, according to the schedule recently released by G. S. Trenbath, '33, assistant manager of basketball. All the battles will be staged on the home floor as preliminaries to varsity contests.

The Jayvees lost to the Inter-academic Alumni on December 16, but Coach Thomas feels that his squad will be much stronger when they take the floor against the U. of P. Evening School of Accounts and Finance on Saturday. The game is a preliminary to the Varsity-Stevens tilt. Not only have they improved with practice, but Patten's ankle has mended and Dothard, football luminary, has joined the squad. Two freshmen, Patten and Foerster, will probably team up at the forward positions. Appell, another Jayvee forward, has graduated to a varsity guard position. The little freshman's fast floor work earned him the promotion. Singer, a sophomore, will be seen at the centre post. Dothard and Dutton are in battle for the remaining berth. F. B. Jones, Hotz, B. D. Smith, Stoddard, Hollander and Bates are available as substitutes.

The last two contests on the Jayvee schedule are both features. On Washington's birthday several of the court stars of the last few years will return to play in the preliminary to the varsity tilt with Harvard. In the season's finale the Triangle A. C. will furnish the opposition. This quintette, composed of former West Philadelphia players, engages in about forty games each winter and is rarely defeated.

The Sport Jester

By WALTON FIELD, '88

Alas and alack! The basketball team seems to be unable to pull a victory out of the winter sports bag. Three tries now, and the win column still empty. We do think, however, that the boys are trying, and considering the fact that not even one of the varsity has a regular member of last year's quintette in the cast, we believe that all is being done that may be expected. It is hardly possible to mold a winning combination out of a bunch who have never played as a unit before.

The grapplers have not as yet done anything startling except practice, but we entertain high hopes for some fast and exciting action from them in the near future. It is quite probable that there will be no meets until after the Mid-winters. Then, however, this column awaits some interesting, if not successful, bouts, tournaments, or what have you.

1932 is the first year in many that the ice skating pond has escaped action by the middle of January. The weather this winter has been disappointing to many Arctic sports enthusiasts. The order of the year is in keeping with London weather, and is not to the liking of those who enjoy the muscle of the ringing skate blade or the crunch of the ski and snow shoe. Here's hoping for a reasonable drop of the mercury, so that the pond may once again be thronged with skaters, near-skaters, and young women.

TRACK WORKOUTS PLANNED

"Pop" Haddleton to Have Men on Boards After Midyear Exams

With the return of the college from Christmas vacation, the first steps were taken toward the preparation of the coming track schedule. Many lettermen from last year's squad are missing, and a difficult program is ahead. In an interview last week, Coach Haddleton said that the outlook was not entirely gloomy, with a number of hard-working candidates left to fill the shoes of the graduated stars.

The board track has been repaired, and will be in readiness for the usual meets after the midyear period. It is the plan of the veteran mentor to enter men in the Meadowbrook Games that are held late in February in Philadelphia. G. P. Foley, '32, present holder of the college pole vault record, will work out in his favorite event at the University of Pennsylvania.

GRADS WIN LEAD IN INTRAMURAL LEAGUE

Defeat South Barclay, Lloyd Gaining for Perfect Record in Interdorm Debut

As the Intramural Basketball race enters its third week of the present season, the team from the Graduate house has a firm grasp on first place. This, their first season in the dorm league, has been one of victories for the grads. To open their career they beat Merion-Founders and now have two more victories to their credit with no losses.

On the Tuesday before vacation, they battled South Barclay into oblivion by a 33-26 score. It was a close game throughout with Reed starting for the victors. That same night saw North Lloyd win by default from Center Barclay. On Thursday of that week South Lloyd took its only victory so far when they nosed out Merion-Founders for their second loss in the week by a 12-8 score. Following that game on the same night Center Barclay lost its third game when North Barclay nosed them out in the last few minutes of play. The score near the end stood 16-15 when Bodine scored three points for the Northerners and the victory eluded Center.

Last Tuesday found Merion-Founders coming back after two defeats to break into the win column with a victory over North Lloyd. The game started slow but the Merionites soon began to function and under the leadership of high scorer "Lank" Brown the winners had garnered an 18-13 victory.

FIFTEEN AT FOREIGN POLICY SYMPOSIUM

I. R. C. Members Hear Talks at Luncheon on Questions of Armaments

Twelve students, members of the International Relations Club, and three professors, attended the third luncheon-discussion of the Foreign Policy Association at the Bellevue-Stratford in Philadelphia Saturday. Dr. William I. Hull, of Swarthmore College and chairman of the Penn. Committee on Total Disarmament, presented the viewpoint of a total abolitionist. Col. Lewis S. Sorley, Military Order of the World War, rendered a fiery argument in favor of armed defense.

Dr. John G. Herndon, Jr., assistant professor of Government and Economics; Dr. Rayner W. Kelsey, professor of History, and Dr. Leigh W. Ried, professor of Mathematics, were the faculty members who attended.

C. B. Allendoerfer, J. N. Hartel, R. M. Wertime, T. L. Potts, H. K. Dugdale, Jr., H. L. Hansen, J. W. Hazard, Y. H. Kerslake, R. W. Kelsey, Jr., W. B. Smith, Jr., and F. A. Van Denbergh, Jr., represented the student body.

MORLEY TALKS AT PENN

In the last of a series of lectures for the A. S. W. Rosenbach Foundation in the auditorium of the University of Pennsylvania Museum December 17, Christopher Morley, 10, made the statement that John Masfield, poet laureate of England, never rose higher than a bus boy in the New York saloon where he was employed.

Denying that Masfield had been a bartender in a Greenwich Village saloon, Morley declared that he lacked the skill essential to a position of that kind.

Mr. Morley referred to Vachel Lindsay, who died recently, as one of America's foremost literary figures.

Modern ROMANCE has its sweetest message in -----

Whitman's SAMPLER

As Romeo symbolizes the lover, so the Sampler stands for the tribute he pays to the modern Juliet. So many romances have woven themselves about the Sampler that for thousands it has itself acquired an atmosphere of romance.

So we offer it as the Valentine of 1932, with a gay design of hearts and harlequins.

The Sampler is the most widely distributed assortment of candies in the world. Buy it, in the Valentine dress, or without, at the nearest Whitman dealer.
