Scarlet Defeated By Navy Sailors On Severn River

Bushnell, Sherpik Win Scoring Honors In Middle - Atlantic

The U. S. Naval Academy eked out a 59-57 victory over Haverford in competition for "The America Trophy" held Saturday at Annapolis. Cornell University and Stevens Institute of Technology also raced for possession of the trophy, which represents the collegiate sailing championship of the Middle Atlantic area.

Sailing teams of the four schools found a thirty knot wind blowing when they met at the Severn River Basin for the regatta. Race officials decided, however, that the races could be held in the Naval Academy's 14 foot International Dinghies. Navy led the first race of the division by several boat lengths and Bushnell of Haverford placed second. Hood, skippering for Haverford in the second division of dinghies, trailed close behind Navy until the last leg of the race, where Cornell and Stevens broke past him. Throughout the second race, Bushnell tangled with Stevens and Cornell, and was unable to catch Navy. Hood again had difficulty with windward work and finished fourth.

Hood Is Swamped

Hood and Bushnell both took second places in their divisions of the third race. Navy fouled out in the first division, which helped to even the score. The results of the last race of the morning showed that the wind had risen too high for sailing dinghies, and it was decided to sail 26 foot knockabouts in the afternoon. The Navy first division dinghy broke its mast, giving Bushnell first place. Hood led the second division by a wide margin until a puff knocked his dinghy down. Hood and his crew showed excellent seamanship in reaching the shore and unrigging before the dinghy swamped completely.

Haverford Commodore Sherpik, who had crewed for Bushnell in the morning, took Hood's place as second division skipper for the afternoon. Roche and Long crewed for Bushnell, while Hood and Rivers crewed for Sherpik. Bushnell and his crew had difficulty at first in handling the larger craft. They finished the fifth race in fourth position, trailing Cornell closely. Sherpik skipped his knockabout easily to a first place, leading the second division for the entire race. In the sixth race, Bushnell again finished fourth, only a few yards behind the Navy boat. Sherpik skipped masterfully, and in spite of taking several large waves inboard, nosed out his competitor for his second win.

Bushnell Finishes First

In the seventh race, Bushnell gingerly luffed through forty knot puffs to bring his knockabout in to third place. Navy had placed poorly, and only a few points separated the contestants. Sherpik brought the Haverford score to within four points of Navy as he led the second division across the finish for the third time. In the eighth and last race, Bushnell finished first in his division. A win by Haverford would have tied the meet, as Sherpik missed finishing first only by inches. The final score stood: Navy 59, Haverford 57, Cornell 52, and Stevens 48. Bushnell was second in total number of points, and Sherpik had the highest average of any skipper.

Intermission at Spring Dance

Dancers Sport to Clover's Band At Spring Dance Held in Gym

By DAVID E. LONG

An observer on the campus of Haverford on Friday last at about 8:45 would have seen an unusual amount of light coming from the Haverford "hall of physical culture," and would further have heard considerable and significant noise. To the knowing, this all added up to the last 15 minutes before the big spring dance.

Orchestra Many, Dancers Few

Swaying and swinging to the music of Johnny Clover and his Lansdowne band, a small group of Haverfordians and their collective girls enjoyed the gayest event which has hit the College for some time. The orchestra was almost as large as the number of dancers, but it was good (if you don't like your music too hot, which we ancients don't). For the first part of the dance its most prominent feature was the unreliability of the floor, and it was a common sight to see galled Haverfordians with their partners reclining in their arms.

MacIntosh, Benham Chaperone

In attendance were the Vice-president and Mrs. MacIntosh and Mr. and Mrs. Benham as chaperones. In attendance, also, was almost the whole of the baseball team, and half of Gov. House, which seems to have set the attendance record. Absent, were two-thirds of the student body, due either to previous engagements, or to ennui.

The dance was of the program variety until after 12, and from then until 1 was a free-for-all type. During the intermission punch was served in the Memorial Gardens, which were lighted by the pale glow of moonlight. It seemed to be the general consensus of opinion that this was a particularly fortunate choice, and it also seemed that many found themselves attracted more by the moonlight than by the prospect of further dancing.

The climax of the evening came late, and resolved itself into a series of anti-climaxes. The band broke into a particularly hot piece with many "sending" solos, and Jim Wright broke into some of the most fervid jitterbugging seen, to the delight of all, especially as it ended on the floor. Then it was decided to sing the alma mater, and a somewhat diminished crowd began to sing enthusiastically. The embarrasment of the Haverfordians was

United States Student Assembly Convention Attended by Three Haverford College Students

By WALTER I. SELIGSOHN

A group of weary, hungry, and nervous college students rose from their seats, when William H. Chartener brought down the gavel for the final bang, thus closing the second annual convention of the United States Student Assembly. At the end of the stormy six hour session, during which Chartener occupied the chair nearly without pause, less than one-half of the delegates were left.

Addressed by Mrs. Roosevelt

The convention listened to many prominent speakers, among them Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Vice-Premier Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, and Dr. Mario Salvadori of Colombia. All speakers emphasized the role that students can play during the war and in the post war world, by collecting and disseminating information, and helping in the rebuilding of student life in Europe.

The convention lasted from Friday evening until Sunday evening, during which period the delegates attended round-table discussions on economic, political, racial, community and other problems; joint meetings with representatives from the Union for Democratic Action, the Civil Liberties League and like organizations to map out a program of cooperation and united action; and various business meetings at which the policy of the organization was formulated, and the officers for the next year elected.

Army Group to Arrive Here in June or July; More Pre-Meds Expected

Professors Oakley and Sargent Appointed Academic Directors of Group; Teaf Announces Courses

The Administration last week announced an influx of new Army students to take place sometime in June. These students will be members of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which is made up of seventeen-year-old boys. According to the present plan the group assigned to Haverford will be those under 17 years, 6 months on July 1 and who therefore will be allowed at least three terms of college training under the Army program. Each term will consist of one 12 week quarter, and it is expected that the first one will begin about July 12.

Herndon to Give Collection Quiz

Four College Teams Will Oppose Faculty On Foreign Affairs

Professor John G. "Fadiman" Herndon will conduct a quiz on international affairs at the last Collection of the present semester, May 16, in Roberts Hall.

Five teams of four members each will take part in this novel program. Three of the teams will consist of students representing Haverford, Rosemont, and Bryn Mawr Colleges. Four Haverford professors will make up the fourth team, and the fifth group will represent the Haverford Reconstruction and Relief Unit.

President Felix Morley, of "Government 17a" fame, and Professors William Henry Chamberlin, L. Arnold Post, and Edmund Stinnes will represent the Haverford College faculty. The Haverford student team will consist of David Y. Y. Hsia, Masamori Kojima, David E. Long, and Richard W. Norton.

Representing the Relief and Reconstruction unit will be the Misses Maria Louisa Guildmeister, Lois Plumb, Jean Wehmeyer, and Deborah Douglas.

William H. Chartener is helping Professor Herndon draw up the questions.

Group in Two Sections

The group will be divided into two sections. One of these sections will take what is called the Introductory Course. This is meant for those men who, after their three terms in College, will go right into the regular Army without any further specialized college training. Their curriculum consists of three terms of Physics and of English, two terms of Mathematics, and one term of Geography, American History, Chemistry, and Engineering Drawing. The other section of this group will take the Basic Course, which may lead to further specialization in either the Engineering or the Pre-medical fields. They will all have three terms of Physics and of English, two terms of Chemistry and of Mathematics, and one each of American History and Geography. In the third term there will be a split in this section. Those men who qualify for Pre-medical work by passing the Medical Aptitude test will continue by taking Biology and additional chemistry in place of Engineering Drawing and additional Mathematics.

Oakley, Sargent Plan Studies

President Morley has announced the appointments of Cletus O. Oakley, Professor of Mathematics, as Academic Director for Scientific Studies of the new unit, and Ralph M. Sargent, Professor of English, as Academic Director for Humanitarian Studies. The minimum number of students expected is 100 and the maximum 200. The present Army Pre-medical unit will probably be moved into the first two or three entries of Lloyd Hall to make room for the new men in Barclay Hall.

Biology Club Chooses Officers at Meeting

On Thursday evening, May 4, the rejuvenated Biology Club held its first meeting in several years. The club elected Dr. Francis Evans, Instructor in Biology, to be faculty advisor. Charles Long was made president of the club, with Martin Sanders as secretary.

The Biology Club has as its program the study of birds and insects, with its main project centering around the animal life in the Pond. In addition to this, there will be various talks by student members of the club, with occasional speeches by faculty members from the Biology Department.

During the meeting, a Constitutional Committee, composed of David Y. Y. Hsia and John H. Arnett was appointed to draft a suitable constitution for the operation of the club.

"The Opportunity That is Ours"—II

THOSE WHO HAVE HAD SOME DOUBT as to the probable status of Haverford College after June 1 need doubt no more. The announcement by President Morley last week concerning the future arrival on campus of an Army Specialized Training Reserve Unit was an emphatic reassurance that Haverford will not succumb to the war but will continue to operate its "plant" at near-maximum capacity.

This army unit will consist of a minimum of 100 students and a maximum of 200; the Army has not yet assigned a definite number to the college. But in any case, this unit will be made up entirely of seventeen-year-olds. Their stay at Haverford may not be long, for they are subject to transfer into the regular Army upon reaching their eighteenth birthday. This, combined with the expected arrival of more Army pre-medical students and the not-to-be-forgotten incoming freshmen, means that for some time to come Haverford will be in a constant state of flux.

Many of us on the campus and many of our alumni, perhaps, do not like to think of Haverford College as a "plant." It is true that Haverford was never a "diploma mill," that its reputation was gained by representing the best in the field of small, liberal arts colleges. But every institution, including a college, is to some extent mechanical. And every college at which a military unit is studying becomes a "plant" to a great degree.

After June, therefore, the civilian student body at Haverford must assume a great responsibility—the heaviest burden, considering circumstances, that it has ever been forced to bear. Sometime in the month of October, 1943, the NEWS printed an editorial entitled, "The Opportunity That is Ours." Haverford students have gone through a trying period in the last eight months, but it is to their credit that they recognized their opportunity and took full advantage of it; for in both scholastic and extra-curricular endeavors, the students have surpassed all expectations during the past two semesters.

The opportunities offered to a student at Haverford College are not ephemeral. "The Opportunity That is Ours" is still ours, and after June it will be an even greater challenge to us. The student body must assume the task of making sure that Haverford continues not as a "plant" but as an institution educating the mind, developing the body, and molding the character so essential for future leadership.

The NEWS speaks for the entire college civilian student body in voicing its appreciation to the administration for this recent good news. We can only hope that the civilian students will uphold their part of Haverford in the future as well as they have during the past two semesters.

A Chronicle of Small Beer

It is to be emphasized that the Special Library Fund for newspapers and periodicals is a fund started by students. The Library administration is not going around begging. The students want to help create a finer library—the students are conducting the drive for funds—the library information desk is merely a convenient place to receive contributions. Professor Lockwood is in no way connected with this student fund.

Congratulations to the Glee Club for their successful Spence School concert last week. The boys attended classes on Friday, which should attract considerable attention in itself, for they wandered back to the campus at various intervals from midnight to 6 a. m. Friday morning. . . . The Spring Dance, thanks to the efforts of "Toby" Lehmann and his committee, stands as the high mark in the field of entertainment for 1943-44.

The baseball game on Saturday afternoon stands as the high mark in the field of after-effects of that entertainment. Either the boys still had moonlight in their eyes on Saturday afternoon or a "hang-over" was the order of the day. . . . Coach Ray Mallan to the umpire during the game: "I guess my boys had a little too much dance."

Signs of Spring: Furious digging, hoeing, and raking of faculty gardens. . . . D. V. Steere in overalls lugging a basket of dirt. . . . Billy Carter perched on the lawn mower. . . . A. Macintosh in white dinner jacket at the dance. . . . "Doc" Leake sporting a "Haverford-1938" cap. . . . sunbaths and tennis in the afternoons—comprehensives and swearing (synonymous) all night. . . . Tom Drake wearing a loud check sport jacket. . . . Cletus Oakley bouncing a rubber ball while walking to classes.

Indications of a Change

THE DISCUSSIONS over the WHAV-WBMC network last Wednesday evening concerning the Honor System was one of the first clear-headed perusals of the matter in a long time and one which we sincerely hope will lead to a general improvement of the System.

Not only was various student opinion represented, but also faculty thought. A discussion of this sort is worth noticing not because of any conclusions arrived at during the brief thirty-minute time period allowed but chiefly because the discussion was held. Any sound change in the world occurs because there is a need for it; the fact that this discussion was held proves that there is widespread desire for some change in the existing Honor System at Haverford.

Antioch College, long a leader in liberal college education and training, is a living example of student-faculty-administration cooperation in the settling of all college problems. The discussion period over the radio last week was an important step in this direction.

Conservatism is not always the best policy in following only the meaning of the word itself. As the faculty representative so excellently pointed out last Wednesday night, perhaps now is the time to start changing our standards for the better, not to wait for peace to come. If this is an experimental period in the college's history, then we might well start experimenting now. Let not conservatism make us stagnant.

Athletics, A Morale Gauge

In peace time athletics is one of the best yardsticks by which to measure the spirit of a small college. Now in war time, even though, in most cases, the standard of excellence cannot be compared with that of former years, the attitude of both players and spectators is a good indication of the morale of the civilian students. This attitude should include such ideas as sportsmanship, love of the sport in itself, and the will to win. These are old phrases which have become somewhat trite from overuse, yet the ideas they express are the bases of all sports contests.

On the whole Haverford this year has had some good teams, and some of the best team records in her history. The spirit has been good, not only among the players, but within the student body in general. The basketball team never drew more enthusiastic crowds, and everybody on campus was waiting anxiously every game night to see how many Monty would chalk up. The Nautical Club, although its activities are less of a spectator sport, has probably never had a more rabid group of sailors and we are certainly justly proud of their splendid showing in the Middle Atlantic Cup Races. The baseball team in general has done very well so far and is also supported by a small but interested group of students.

This is the bright side of the picture. The more gloomy aspect is the entrance into Haverford athletics of a new and unpleasant element. The childish affectation of smoking while in a game, the appearance of camp followers on a prolonged trip, and the loss of a game by hangover are all things which would not have occurred in the days when Haverford was carrying a capacity load and tight competition was held for every position in which a man represented the College.

It is possible, however, that these are indications of temporary disorganization which can be straightened out by increased emphasis on intramural sports. We are therefore depending on the physical education department to carry on this summer as it has in the past—with bigger and better softball leagues and tennis ladders.

Crow's Nest

Dear Mom,

I pulled in a 98 on a Math test, a 97 on a Chem test, and a 96 on a Physics test, and had all my homework for Monday done by Friday night. What I am building up to is the fact that I decided to absolutely throw away a whole weekend and go down to Annapolis to watch our sailing team in the Middle Atlantic Championships. Some of the guys tipped me off that it would be pretty good.

El Comodoro managed to scrape together enough gas coupons to drive the fellows down on Friday, so I naturally hooked a ride. I was asleep all the way down—the trip was relatively uneventful, they tell me. They dropped me at Joe's house in Annapolis and then went on to their own quarters at the Naval Academy.

Saturday morning I went down to watch the boys practicing for the races on Sunday. They looked plenty hot to me, but I was kind of restless waiting for the real thing to come off the next day. Skipping over the uninteresting experience of a dateless evening in Annapolis, I am shocked by the sudden arrival of Sunday morning which dawns calm as you can imagine. By 10 o'clock (race time) the calm had been succeeded by what appeared to me, the landsman of the bunch, as a veritable hurricane. Not wanting to miss any of the fun, I hitched a ride on the committee boat—giving myself a beautiful view of the tidiest swamping that I have ever seen.

One of our crews, sailing in the second division (like the second heat in track), was leading the pack all the way down to the first buoy, across a long open stretch, and around a second buoy. Then all of a sudden I see the whole darn boat just stand up on her side and start taking water in over the lower rail at a terrific rate. The thing just sailed that way for a whole tack, with water spouting up over the side like a fountain. Then, a hundred yards or so from shore, she just sat straight up in the water, the wind still moving her, but not enough rail above water to be worth talking about.

It was one of the funniest sights (I can say that now) that I have ever seen. Just try to imagine two fellows sitting in a boat which is almost completely submerged; they looked like they were sitting on the water. As if that wasn't handing us enough of a laugh, a couple of seconds later a stupendous geyser of water came streaming out from behind the sail, which was still hoisted, and concealing our view of the regions beyond it. It turns out later that it was just one of the crew members bailing with a speed heretofore unheard of. The more I think about it, the funnier it gets, but it was rather indiscreet of us all to laugh like that when the boat was slowly settling toward the bottom of the river. As it was, everything turned out all right; the boat made shore, where a convenient ledge on a concrete pier provided footing for its well-soaked crew. It was agreed by all to be one of the tidiest swamplings in naval history.

Well, I guess that sort of showed that the wind was a little strong for such small boats, for after dinner the men were handed twenty-six foot "Knockabouts" and told to sail them. This was where our boys came in; they hadn't been doing so hot in the dinghies (navy specialties), but when it came to these things they started to tighten the score a bit. You probably read in the NEWS that they broke away from Cornell and Stevens after some tough races and came within two points of Navy by the end of the meet.

After some solid Navy chow for energy, we boarded the commodore's station wagon and headed home; we arrived in one piece. You know, Mom, I think I'll have to pick up a sailboat somewhere; sailing looks like more darn fun!

Haverford Nine Wins Two of Three Games In Past Week

Down Drexel By 11-10 Score

Annesley Gives Only Seven Hits

In a thrilling 11-10 victory, Haverford managed to eke out a win from Drexel Institute of Technology last Wednesday, to gain its third straight victory in four starts. The game was marked by lusty hitting and fielding, and the lead changed hands five times until an error in the first half of the ninth plated Kennedy with what proved to be the winning run.

Wright Opens Scoring
Captain Jim Wright opened for Haverford by reaching first on an error at third base. He promptly stole second and scored while Kennedy was being put out on the bases. The Drexel lead-off man singled and was advanced to second on a fielder's choice, but Annesley made the next man ground out to third, and then struck out the next two men, leaving the runner stranded on third. In the third Drexel forged ahead by dint of a walk, two stolen bases, and a single by Mort Simons, but Haverford put on a spurge to lead, 5-2, in the fourth. Wright, Henkels, Leuchter, and Trainer singled, and Taylor doubled to produce four runs on five hits. However, Drexel tied it up in the fifth when, with one out, the center fielder doubled, stole second and scored on an error. The clean-up man then struck out, but the next man walked and the third baseman came through with a solid single to center to score two more runs. In the sixth, Haverford managed to get four hits, all singles, by Kennedy, Estey, Taylor and Leuchter, but they were good for only one run.

Kennedy Hits Homer
The D. I. T. half of the sixth inning proved almost fatal for the Haverford cause, as Drexel scored three runs on exactly no hits. Outfield errors and a walk combined inopportunistly to give the Dragons an 8-6 lead. Luckily, the Fords managed to make up these runs when Wright collected his second hit, advanced on a stolen base and a fielder's choice, and Frank Kennedy slugged across three runs on a tremendous "old-fashioned" homer over the center fielder's head. Drexel made it 9-9 when they scored twice on two hits, a walk and an error. They increased this to 10-9 on three errors in the eighth frame to end their scoring for the day.

Errors Plentiful
The outlook was gloomy for the Scarlet and Black in the ninth, but Wright reached second on the left fielder's error, was sacrificed to third by Paul Henkels and scored the tying run on Kennedy's third hit, a sharp double to center. After Estey struck out, Taylor hit a "blooper" over second which the second baseman muffed, Kennedy scoring the decisive run.

Cindermen Win Triangular Meet

The Haverford track men won their first victory last Wednesday by scoring 62½ points to Friends' Central's 59, and Westtown's 21½. As a team, Haverford dominated the field events and Captain Paul Dominovich was the meet's individual star.

Dominovich alone scored 21 points, one-third of his team's total and one point shy of topping Westtown's team score. Paul coasted to victories in the high and low hurdles, ran two heats in the 100-yard dash and placed second in the final, broad jumped 19 ft. 11½ in. to win, and placed second in the high jump with a leap of 5 ft. 10 in. Krug, Friends' Central, cleared 6 ft. Toby Lehmann and Bill Sherpick together contributed 17 points, Toby winning the javelin throw and Bill the discus.

Captain Foster, Westtown, won the quarter-mile race in the good time of 53.8 seconds, which combined with Krugs' 6-ft. high jump featured the results. Haverford's Tom Elkington pole vaulted 11 ft.

Summaries:
High hurdles — 1, Dominovich (H.); 2, Richie (H.); 3, Lally (H.); 4, Randall (F.C.). Time, 18.4.

Mile — 1, Randall (F.C.); 2, Goodman (H.); 3, Miller (H.); 4, Robinson (F.C.). Time, 5:01.2.

MASCAA Pays Honor To "Pop" Haddleton

On Friday, April 28, at a meeting of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Association, Coach Alfred "Pop" Haddleton was awarded a scroll in honor of his twenty-four years of coaching at Haverford. Each year the association selects an outstanding member for this honor. The scroll is signed by a large number of members of the association and was presented to "Pop" by Clarence E. Billheimer of Gettysburg, who is president of the MASCAA and also head of the Small College Group of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Trounce PMC To Tune of 12-7

Gross Pitches Fine First Game

The Hornets of Haverford College made it two in a row by downing a hapless Pennsylvania Military College nine on Tuesday, May 2. Harley Gross, pitching his first game for Haverford, did an exceedingly fine job. His only weakness was lack of control in certain spots. Gross's curve, fast ball, and inahoot baffled the opposing batters for a full five innings when they failed to get a hit. Rich Taylor, Bill Annesley, and Jim Wright excelled at the plate for the Fords.

Final Score 12-7
Wasting no time, the Scarlet and Black collected three runs in the initial frame on a walk to McNeill, a hit by Wright, and triples by Kennedy and Taylor. In their half of the second, P. M. C. tallied one run on three walks and a fielder's choice. Then, while Gross was shutting out the Cadets, the Fords collected nine more runs on well-timed hitting by Wright and Taylor. Ralph Atti, Cadet pitcher, helped the Haverford cause considerably by walking men at opportune moments.

Gross Stars
Not until the sixth inning, when P. M. C. collected five runs on five hits, were they able to touch Gross's pitching. In this inning Gigliotti, Rankin, Titus, Becker, and Lyman connected for the visitors. In the final frame P. M. C. batted in their seventh and final run to end the game.

Flawless ball handling on the part of Haverford and Gross's fine pitching were the outstanding features of the game. In all features to Atti, the visiting pitcher, bad fielding and numerous errors contributed greatly toward his ultimate defeat.

Tennis Varsity Loses to Hopkins

Haverford's 1944 tennis team journeyed to Johns Hopkins last Wednesday afternoon for its first match of the season, but bowed to their hosts by the score of 5-3, third doubles incomplete.

Two men, Ed Goerke and George Montgomery, combined for all the Scarlet and Black's three victories. Playing at No. 1, Goerke, latest addition to the team, overwhelmed Goldberg of the Jays, 6-3, 6-1, while Monty, at No. 3, turned back Hayman with comparative ease, 6-3, 6-4. Then Ed and George combined to defeat Kunkel and Johns, 6-4, 6-4, in the first doubles match.

Johns, No. 2 for Hopkins, outdistanced Tommy Birdsall in a thrilling three-set match, 6-2, 1-6, 9-7, while Kunkel, No. 4, took the measure of Bill Osuga in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. In two other three-set battles, Bob Rubin noed out Jim Mumma, 7-5, 1-6, 7-5, while Malcolm Cameron tired in the third and final set and bowed to Greenblatt, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

The second doubles team of Birdsall and Mumma were beaten by Hayman and Rubin, 6-4, 7-5, and this victory clinched the match for Hopkins. Therefore, after splitting two very even sets, third doubles teams of Cameron-Osuga and Goldberg-Trone called it quits, as it was then already 7:30 and it was getting dark.

was voted down, Chartener, unable to express his opinion during the debate while occupying the chair, announced: "The motion is lost, and the chairman remains with the USSA."

Resolutions were also adopted opposing universal peacetime military conscription and a labor draft at the present time.

M. L. Rogers Re-elected

Mary Louise Rogers of Swarthmore College was re-elected president. Chartener was elected to the presiding committee of the convention and held the most important job of the convention, the chairmanship of the final session.

Besides the meetings and round tables, there was a tea in honor of Louis Fisher. After the tea, Mr. Fisher led a very stimulating "Bull-session" on India. Sunday noon was the luncheon in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt, after which she addressed the group.

At the conference of the International Student Assembly, held at the same time, David Y. Y. Hsia was the representative for China.

Scarlet and Black Bows to Loyola

Haverford Fielding Weak in 14-1 Loss

Last Saturday, the baseball team, suffering from the effects of a "day after" and some overconfidence, was routed by Loyola of Baltimore by the score of 14-1.

Tim Parr, young hurler of the visitors, pitched excellently for the entire seven innings, striking out twelve and allowing but two passes. His pitching was the fastest seen by the Red and Black this year, and that coupled with a curve ball kept the Mullamen breaking their backs the entire afternoon.

Although the visitors deserved the ball game, there was no excuse for the large score. The enemy batters nicked the Scarlet hurlers for but six hits, but the ball was booted around so often by the fielders that the combination, along with eight walks, gave the winners many "grift" runs. Their men reached base in one way or another eighteen times, and on only four of these occasions were they left on base. In our case, our men reached base eight times and were left stranded seven.

All three Ford pitchers worked in the game. Fred Bartlett worked the last three innings, and only in that fact did any bright note creep into the day's proceedings, for "Botis" allowed but one hit in those three innings.

Norman Bramhall, Coach of the Haverford tennis team, has announced a tournament for non-varsity tennis players to be held the week of May 15. In order to give him some idea of the standing of various players he has started a ladder

DIAMOND — THE GEM OF HARMONY

Scintillating beauty has long been responsible for the belief that Diamond promotes harmony between man and woman. Diamond's extreme hardness protects that beauty from the ravages of time, and led the ancient Greeks to believe that the gem was unconquerable.

Because of these superstitions, the beauty of the Diamond became the accepted symbol of unconquerable affection between a man and his wife. Its undying fire continues forever, to repeat its message of devotion.

Glee Club Makes Successful Trip

By JULIUS KATCHEN

About twenty boys travelled to New York last Thursday to sing with the Haverford Glee Club in a joint concert with the Spence School. With the exception of Lew Coffin, the president of the Glee Club, Macy Whitehead and Henry Fetterman, the former president, all of the boys were singing in the annual Spence School concert for the first time.

Arnett Acts as Guide

As a result of the crowded condition of the train, small groups of the fellows were scattered in the many cars. During the trip Coffin's blood pressure began to rise from worrying over the mathematical possibility of assembling the various parts of the Glee Club. By the time the boys arrived at the Pennsylvania Station, where Walt Seligsohn parted for a debate with N. Y. U. and others left for different parts of New York in the hour of free time before the rehearsal, Lew was frantic with anxiety over everyone's eventual arrival at Spence. At this point Jack Arnett made himself a self-appointed guide and, with his assurance and efficiency, took a major portion of the load from Lew's mind. Upon stepping off the bus at 96th Street, the first girl met on the sidewalks of New York was—you guessed it—an old friend of Jack's. As the Spence School was in sight, the rest of the club proceeded, leaving Jack to his chat.

At the school, which resembles a fancy apartment house, the Glee Club were greeted by Hugh Ross, the director of the combined choruses for the evening. At the appointed time, there was a rehearsal alone with Mr. Ross after which we were sent to the gym to wait while the girls were rehearsing.

Much to the annoyance of no one, the singing was adjourned at 6:00 for supper. Before proceeding to the dining hall the boys entered a large living room in which Freddy Blake spiced a piano. Soon the hypnotic spell of his matchless boogie-woogie held the girls spellbound. After about two numbers, much to the annoyance of everyone, Freddy had to stop so that we could eat.

Glee Club Gives Encore

Finally the objective of the trip was reached, the concert itself. The Haverford Glee Club did itself proud, as did the Spence School. Perhaps the excitement of the basketball game and the exhilarating qualities of the boogie-woogie were transferred to the singing; perhaps Mr. Ross' enthusiasm was transmitted to the boys; or maybe just the sight of so many girls provided the necessary inspiration. I don't know, but in any case the boys gave forth powerfully with the best singing they have done this year. Their lusty singing of the Aida chorus, the only encore of the concert, received the evening's greatest ovation. A dance followed the concert and concluded about 10:30. The boys scattered in different directions after having a grand time, knowing that their performance was a complete success.

Forms Distributed For Library Fund

Following up plans made at a recent student-faculty conference, forms have been distributed, enabling students to make contributions to a special Library Fund for Newspapers and Periodicals. Along with the donation, the student was asked to express some preference as to what newspaper or periodical he wished the money applied.

It is hoped that through these contributions the Library will be able to carry some of the more popular periodicals of the day and some of the country's better newspapers. The forms and donations should be presented at the circulation desk in the Library.

Students Discuss Honor System

Round Table Panel Proposes Changes

Last Wednesday evening station WHEAV presented a half-hour round-table discussion of the Honor System here at Haverford. The program was presented because of the recent interest among the student body in the role played by the Honor System here.

Those present at the discussion were Robert Good and Theodore Hiltner representing the student body, Ben Z. Leuchter representing the NEWS, Joseph Stokes, III representing the Student Council and Dr. Ralph M. Sargent, Professor of English, representing the faculty.

The first point brought up was that the best thing to do now is to plan improvements which could be put into effect when the College resumes its normal routine. Dr. Sargent, who is on a committee working on post-war plans for Haverford, asked why the improvements would work in the future if they wouldn't work at the present time.

It was agreed that some might be established now, but such conditions as the influx of younger students (from highly competitive schools in some cases), and the present irregular turnover of the student body in general point towards the making now of recommendations to be carried out later.

There was also a discussion about the second clause of the Honor pledge in which the signer agrees to report any cheating observed. The purpose of the discussion was not to reach any definite conclusions, but only to hear student and faculty viewpoints.

Debate Society Annual Dinner To Be Held Here

Cole, Kato, Kojima Elected to T. K. A. At Recent Meeting

The Haverford chapter of the national honorary debating fraternity, Tau Kappa Alpha, held its initiation for new members Monday evening. Richard W. Cole, Walter Y. Kato, and Masamori Kojima were elected to the organization for their participation in at least five intercollegiate debates and being in the upper third in scholarship. At a business meeting, held after the initiation of the new members, William H. Chartener was elected president of the chapter succeeding David Y. Y. Hsia. Other members of the Haverford chapter are: Thomas P. Goodman, Richard E. Spatz, John K. Libby, and John R. Cary.

Professor Post Will Speak

The debating society to conclude its 1943-44 debating season will hold its annual debaters' banquet on Thursday, May 11, in the R. & R. dining room. Professor L. Arnold Post and Mr. Brinton H. Stone, faculty advisor of T. K. A., will speak at the dinner. President Emeritus W. W. Comfort is expected to attend. Thomas P. Goodman, manager of the debating society, announced that everybody who has debated this year is invited to the dinner.

On Friday, May 5, Walter I. Seligsohn and William H. Chartener defended the negative arguments on the question: "Resolved, That men in 4-F classification be drafted for essential industries," in a debate with N. Y. U. which was carried over radio station WNYC in New York City.

Hold Contest With Penn

In two debates with the men's and women's teams of Gettysburg College, Bard Thompson and Walter Y. Kato presented the affirmative case on the International Police Question, on Friday, May 5. Masamori Kojima and Walter I. Seligsohn debated against a team from the University of Pennsylvania on the question: "Resolved, That the present capitalistic system in the United States should be replaced by a socialist system." Haverford presented the affirmative arguments in this debate.

great when they discovered that they knew only the first few words, and the singing practically died.

After the dance there were numerous parties throughout the campus, and the evening was pronounced a success by all, although the drug store reported a huge rise in the aspirin consumption early the next morning.

Summer Session To Be Subject Of Prize Debate

Committee Chooses Four to Participate In Oratory Contest

The Alumni Oratorical Contest will be held in the Union on either Thursday, May 18 or Friday, May 19, it was announced by Dr. Edward Snyder, head of the English Department.

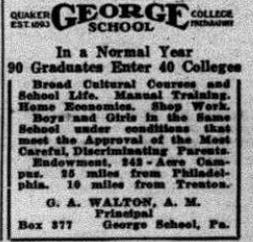

The contest will be a debate on the subject: "Resolved, That Haverford and similar independent liberal arts colleges should stop holding summer sessions when the war emergency is over."

The affirmative arguments will be presented by William H. Chartener, '46 and Masamori Kojima, '45. The negative case will be upheld by Thomas P. Goodman, '46 and Ben Z. Leuchter, '46. The choice of sides was determined by lot. The presiding officer will be Dr. Snyder, who for 10 years taught debating at Haverford. The judges will be chosen from the alumni and the faculty.

The Alumni Prize for Composition and Oratory was established in the year 1875 by the Alumni Association of Haverford College for an annual prize of fifty dollars in money for excellence in composition and oratory.
